The Roads Best Traveled

No one knows the best hidden, winding, scenic roads like a Corvette owner. We got eight local Corvette clubs to spill their secrets when it comes to their favorite drives.

This year, the Corvette marks its 70th anniversary. To honor this iconic sports car — and inspire you to explore somewhere new in your Corvette — we asked Corvette clubs around the country which cruises are their favorite and keep them coming back. From straights that'll send your tachometer spinning to twists and turns where you can find that perfect apex, there's something for everyone in each of these routes. Just make sure to stop and enjoy the scenery along the way, too.

West Virginia

Lewisburg to Thomas

Winding its way from Lewisburg to Thomas, this favorite route of the Kanawha Valley Corvette Club samples some of the best of the Appalachian Mountains with ample opportunities for exciting driving. As you travel north, US 219 hugs the contours of the mountains, making for tight and twisty roads where you can flow from one apex to the next. Along the route, you'll find plenty of small towns and picturesque vistas that make for great places to stop. And it's not just the local Corvette owners who find this route to be noteworthy; the drive was recently designated as part of the Seneca Skyway by the West Virginia Department of Transportation because of its scenery and exciting roads.
